PRESSURE | FOCUS FEATURES
LETTERS HOME + FORT CAMPBELL ACTIVATION
MAY 2026

THE OPPORTUNITY

A campaign built around history.

PRESSURE puts audiences inside the 72 hours leading up to D-Day, one of the most consequential moments in American history. This partnership extends that story beyond the screen.

The USO holds a collection of approximately 150 World War II letters donated by service members and their families. These letters have never been made accessible to the American public. Through this partnership, Focus Features' PRESSURE has the opportunity to change that, surfacing real, first-person voices from the days surrounding D-Day, co-branded with the film, and timed to its release.

The audiences most likely to connect with this film – those who value history, service, and national legacy – are audiences this campaign is designed to reach and engage. By connecting audiences to real voices from this moment in history, the campaign builds emotional investment in the story before they ever step into a theater.

THE CONCEPT

Two components. One narrative thread.

The partnership is built around two connected initiatives, each grounded in the story of D-Day.

01 – Letters Home: A World War II Archive
A public-facing digital archive of curated WWII letters, launched on USO.org and co-branded with PRESSURE. Made accessible to the American people for the first time.

02 – Fort Campbell Activation · Week of the Eagles
An in-person experience at Fort Campbell on May 19, honoring the 101st Airborne Division, the unit that parachuted into Normandy in the same 72 hours PRESSURE depicts, during their annual Week of the Eagles celebration. The activation honors the 101st past and present, connecting the legacy of those who served in World War II to the men and women who carry that tradition forward today.

PRIMARY INITIATIVE

Letters Home

A curated selection of 10-15 WWII letters will be professionally digitized, transcribed, and presented with light historical context on a co-branded landing page hosted on USO.org. The archive is designed to drive traffic, generate earned media, and create a content platform that sustains engagement through the theatrical window and beyond.

DIGITAL EXPERIENCE
- Co-branded landing page on USO.org with homepage placement during the campaign window
- 10–15 curated WWII letters, archival-quality digitized and transcribed
- Embedded PRESSURE trailer and film messaging – "In theaters May 29"
- Andrew Scott reading a selected letter, deployed as primary creative across paid and organic social
- Built for scalability – expands into a full USO-owned archive following the campaign

PUBLICITY + AMPLIFICATION
- Joint press release positioned as a first-time public release of WWII letters
- USO CEO serves as primary spokesperson for national and regional media
- Organic and paid social campaign anchored by the Andrew Scott reading video
- Cross-promotion through Focus Features channels
- Potential influencer amplification connected to the Fort Campbell activation

FOCUS SUPPORT
- Underwrite production costs in support of the storytelling initiative: archival digitization and microsite development
- Provide key creative assets: PRESSURE trailer, film key art, Andrew Scott reading video
- Collaborate on promotional alignment and amplification across Focus channels

SUPPORTING ACTIVATION

Fort Campbell · Week of the Eagles

DATE	LOCATION	TRANSPORT	PARTICIPANTS
Tuesday, May 19, 2026	Fort Campbell, KY/TN ~1 hr from Nashville	Charter bus from Nashville Depart ~7:00 AM	Up to 10 studio guests Subject to USO approval + standard security clearance

Fort Campbell is home to the 101st Airborne Division. On the night before D-Day, the 101st parachuted into Normandy, the opening move of the Allied invasion, hours before troops ever reached the beach. The decision at the heart of PRESSURE.

Week of the Eagles is the 101st's annual celebration of that legacy. The USO's planned Mission Immersion experience during that week creates a press and content moment with real service members and real history, providing an opportunity to invite a curated group of creators to participate, capturing content that amplifies the story through their own platforms.

EXPERIENCE FLOW

Morning — Mission Immersion: Mission brief with 101st Airborne leadership, followed by a guided unit visit with hands-on experiences. Activities may include rappelling, helicopter dunk simulator demo, or training environments simulators.

Midday — Community Barbecue: A catered lunch, bringing together service members, veterans, military families, and Mission Immersion guests in celebration of the 101st Airborne Division and their legacy. Estimated up to 250 guests. Focus Features to sponsor. Estimated cost $3,500-$4,000.

Afternoon — Unit Visit + Experience Moment: Additional on-base engagement with service members, offering a more informal and interactive experience. This may include a morale-driven moment such as an MRE taste test to create a shared, memorable connection point.

Late Afternoon — Museum Visit + Reception: Guided visit to the Tennessee Wings of Liberty Museum, reopening May 15. Opportunity to experience the history of the 101st firsthand, including a potential temporary exhibit featuring the USO's WWII letters collection. Light reception hosted by the USO for invited guests.

Early Evening — Advance Screening: PRESSURE screening for service members, veterans, military families, and invited guests at Regal Clarksville. Focus Features to secure the theater and provide concessions (popcorn and soda).

CAMPAIGN TIMELINE

Early May | Archive Launch + Ticket On-Sale
Joint press release. Archive goes live on USO.org. Andrew Scott creative deployed across social. Timed to Military Appreciation Month and the opening of ticket sales.

Week of the Eagles. USO Mission Immersion, community barbecue, advance screening of PRESSURE. Influencer and ambassador participation as confirmed.

May 29 | PRESSURE – In Theaters
Campaign at full amplitude. Archive live, social active, earned media in market.

Through Mid-June | Co-Branded Window
Archive remains live through the theatrical window with optional phased content releases. Timing flexible based on studio preference.

Post-Campaign | USO Archive – Permanent
Transitions to a fully USO-owned platform. Film and studio branding removed. Archive expands as a lasting public resource.

END GOAL

A story that moves people.

Leverage a defining cultural moment to build awareness for PRESSURE, create affinity for the story, and move audiences toward the theater.

This initiative positions Focus Features' PRESSURE as not just telling this story, but helping preserve it – generating goodwill, earning media attention, and reaching audiences who understand that this moment changed the course of history.
